Abdul

MAMA PROMISES we will go to school and be safe to walk on the street there – no bullets. No bombs pounding all night and day.

On the phone Papa says when children cross the road an adult holds a sign and stops all the traffic to let them pass. He says grown-up drivers Actually Stop For Children! Of course, I don't believe him. But it's nice that he is making up funny stories to help me feel better while we wait and wait.

The journey from the terror has been a lifetime. Mama paid a brave farmer to hide us in his truck, under his sacks of dung. Then we stumbled across land for weeks. I saw Mama cry. She left the last of her treasured possessions by the road, too heavy to carry another step.

We pretended through the checkpoint with happy We-are-going-a-long-way-to-a-family-wedding smiles on our faces – hearts thumping, dressed for a party, not for an escape.

Then the airport, at last, and flying halfway around the world. Then waiting and waiting in the stinking, teeming camp full of desperate and hollow hearts. Four birthdays already. How many more? Will we finally find our deliverance on this creaking boat paid for with everything we had and my mother's broken heart? "What if we die? What if we drown in the sea?"

Hussein slaps my leg to make me quiet. "Abdul! We'd have died if we'd stayed," he hisses at me for making it harder for Mama.

She rocks and prays into the west. I know she is ripped in two. I wish she would decide. The soil or the sea. The captain presses her, "Plenty others happy to take your place Mrs."

Papa says all the people from our new country will welcome us and give us new clothes and gifts.

What will he say next? That we are going to Paradise?

Maybe soon we will have our feet on the firm safe soil of our new home, all our troubles over, at last.

Inshallah.

Age: 8+

Year 3 – Year 6

Walker Books Australia

Award-winning Australian comedian Andrew Hansen, best known for The Chaser, has teamed up with his wife, designer Jessica Roberts, to create their very first children's book series.

When twelve-year-old Bab Sharkey finds a magical beard in the Egyptian desert, it attaches itself to his face, making him the Pharaoh and granting him strange powers. Bab also finds the friends he's always needed: a pair of undead animals wrapped in bandages called Scaler the Fish Mummy and Prong the Ibis Mummy. But the previous owner of the Beard, the ancient and evil sorceress Unpharaoh, is determined to get it back. Can Bab and his new Animal Mummy friends banish the Unpharaoh back to the Afterworld?

This hilarious illustrated series is perfect for middle-grade readers with a wacky sense of humour.

THEMES

Ancient Egypt, humour, intelligence, bravery.

DISCUSSION AND ACTIVITY GUIDE

animal-mummies.com

“Goodnight, Babby boo!” Prof Sharkey said, kissing Bab on the cheek. “I won’t see you tomorrow, I’m going Beard hunting with the professors and won’t be back till late. No need for you to venture out. You stay nicely wrapped and safe in your room.”

“Okay, Mum,” sighed Bab.

She blew him one more kiss and closed his bedroom door with a snap.

Bab triggered his belt. It sliced off his bubble wrap with a WHOOSH! and he flopped into bed wide awake. He couldn’t stop thinking about the mummified bird with its disturbing smile and the fish with its four foreign-looking legs. The bird and the fish, locked in the dark storeroom just down the hall. No way was he staying home alone tomorrow – no amount of bubble wrap would make him feel safe.

He wished he was back home where he could tell his school friends what he’d found. He really missed them.

It was almost a year now since Bab had been expelled from school. The principal, Miss Beavers, had summoned him to her office after he’d scored well in yet another exam. Miss Beavers had a haircut shaped like a loaf of bread, which made her seem very tall.

She’d leaned over him and said, “Now, Bab Sharkey. You are our cleverest student, our star performer.”

“Gee, thank you, Miss Beavers,” he’d said, shuffling his feet awkwardly.

“Our teachers say they’ve learned more from you than they did in six years at university. You’re

When ANDREW HANSEN isn’t writing about Animal Mummies, he writes and performs comedy. He hops on stage whenever he feels brave enough. Working with his friends in a group called The Chaser, he’s written funny newspapers and books. The Chaser have also made TV shows with silly names like Media Circus, The Hamster Wheel, The Chaser’s War On Everything and even one called CNNNN that has more Ns in a row than any other show.

JESSICA ROBERTS writes, draws and films stories. Originally from a little town called Kyneton, Jessica grew up surrounded by an odd collection of pets including dogs, quails, chickens, sheep, goats, rabbits and a donkey who’d bite holes in your clothes if you weren’t careful. During a trip to Egypt, Jessica got the idea for this story when she saw real mummified animals in a spooky museum.

MISSING

Sue Whiting

9781760650032

Paperback

March 2018

Age: 10+

Year 4 – Year 8

Walker Books Australia

What do you hope for when there is no hope? In search of this answer, award-winning Australian author Sue Whiting delivers a confronting mystery for younger readers.

Mackenzie da Luca's mother is missing – she's vanished without a trace in the jungles of Panama. Now, 116 days later, Mackenzie and her dad are in those same jungles. Her dad is desperate to find out what's happened to his wife. And Mackenzie is desperate to make sure he doesn't ...

"... readers aged 10 and up will be unable to put this book down. Mackenzie's plight will pull on readers' heartstrings, and the challenges she experiences are sometimes devastating. However, this book is as much about resilience and acceptance as it is about trauma and grief, and there are many important themes that can be pulled out of the narrative for further discussion. Missing is perfect for young fans of contemporary mysteries, but also for reluctant readers who need to be hooked right away with rich storytelling and suspense."

THEMES

Emotional and physical journeys, resilience, trust, guilt.

CLASSROOM IDEAS

classroom.walkerbooks.com.au/home/missing

Sue Whiting on Missing

Each year, in Australia, around 38,000 people are reported missing. Most are found within a week or so but about 5% are considered long-term missing. These statistics break my heart, even more so do the stories behind the numbers, and the families left behind never knowing what happened.

How does a young person cope with such a loss? What do you hope for when there is no hope? These questions haunted me and I knew that I had to explore them through story. It was a tough story to write and is a sad one to read, but I believe it is also an important one. Because it is as much a story about resilience and human endurance as it is one about grief and loss. And it's a story to remind us of the human faces and personal tragedies behind the statistics.

I researched the book for many months – probably close to a year – and I did wonder at times of the wisdom of setting a large chunk of the book in Panama, a country I knew little about and had never visited.

The internet provided many other wonderful insights, including videos and expat and tourist blogs. But the best break came when I discovered that Boquete had CCTV cameras in the main square that provided a 24-hour live feed! I spent many long voyeuristic hours watching the comings and goings across the square day and night, and it helped me set the scene for the chapters based in Panama.

SUE WHITING lives and works in a sleepy coastal village near Sydney, where she spends her days dreaming up adventures for her characters and trying to write them down. Sue has written numerous books in a variety of genres: fiction and nonfiction, picture books through to YA, including the bestselling The Firefighters, and the award-winning A Swim in the Sea. Her picture book Platypus, illustrated by Mark Jackson, was a CBCA 2016 Notable Book. A former primary school teacher with a special interest in literacy education and children's literature, Sue is a highly experienced speaker who loves sharing her passion for story and storytelling, reading and writing with people of all ages. She also works as a freelance editor, writing coach and mentor.
